

Did you know...

that a database, in this brochure referred to as an e-resource, is a collection of many items arranged to be easily searchable? The e-resources that are available to you online with your TRAC library card contain digitized versions of material that had been originally published in print format. Many of the sources of this information, journals, magazines and books, have been reviewed by experts in the field. This ensures that the information you read is factual and accurate.

That's why e-resources are so much better for finding information than a search engine like Google. With the e-resources provided through your library, you can be assured of quality information that is organized in such a way as to help you easily find what you need, wherever you have an internet connection, whenever you want it.

Teacher Resources

Through your local library and your online library catalogue, TRACpac, (www.tracpac.ab.ca) you have access to thousands of items that will help you with all your information needs for the classroom.

To find books in your local library on various non-fiction topics, do a subject search in the library's online catalogue. In the search bar, type in the topic you are interested in. You may wish to change the "Search by" field to "Subject."

Your library may also carry magazines on a topic you are interested in. If you can't find one, ask! You may be able to find a resource in Zinio, our online popular magazine collection

Remember: if your library doesn't own the book, or you can't find the one you're looking for, your library staff will help you borrow it from another library.

Also, your library staff may be able to give library tours to school groups, or sessions on information literacy. Check with your local library about setting up a visit for your class or yourself.

Online E-Resources

Academic Search Elite contains over 2100 full-text, scholarly journals, including over 1700 peer-reviewed journals. Covering virtually every area of academic study with information dating as far back as 1985.

Education Research Complete offers the world's largest and most complete collection of full-text education journals. It is a bibliographic and full text database covering scholarly research and information relating to all areas and levels of education.

ERIC (Education Resources Information Center) contains over one million abstracts of education-related documents and journal articles from the world's largest education information resource.

Teacher Reference Centre provides indexing and abstracts for 280 periodicals. In addition, 96% of journals indexed in TRC are peer-reviewed. Topics include: Assessment, Best Practices, Continuing Education, Current Pedagogical Research, Curriculum Development, Elementary Education, Higher Education, Instructional Media, Language Arts, Literacy Standards, School Administration, Science & Mathematics, and Teacher Education.
